DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 6, 10-11, and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kimura '975.

In regard to claim 6, Kimura teaches impregnating a cerium nitrate onto a zirconium powder followed by calcination. See Example 2. Kimura teaches that part of the cerium solves (dissolves) into the zirconia thus forming a solid solution in the core part. Thus, the solid solution and zirconia are seen as the core and the ceria layer is seen as the surface layer. This meets the limitations requiring that the molar fraction of cerium and zirconium in a ceria/zirconia solid solution in the core part is greater than in the surface layer, and that the molar fraction of ceria in the surface layer (100%) is higher than the molar fraction of ceria in the core. Kimura teaches that platinum can be supported. See [0041].

In regard to claim 10, the powder of zirconia particles are considered primary particles or subunits of which are considered primary particles and the ceria particles produced by impregnation and calcination are considered primary particles.

In regard to claim 11, Kimura teaches that at least one of neodymium and cerium can be used (thus both rare earths can be used). See [0035].

In regard to claim 15, Kimura teaches transitional metal catalyst loadings of 2-10% by weight ([0038]) and 0.01-20% of noble metals ([0041]) thus this forms an overlapping range with the instant claim where the support forms 70%-97.99%. Without the catalyst metals, the cerium and zirconium represent 100% of the particle.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 6, 10-11, and 15 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
